

Suzi Weissova

Very well done overall, and I would want to first make a comment related to her "holistic approach". I was most impressed by her independence and organisation; she required much less help and guidance than I would have expected. And so she developed even more than (normal) high level which is usual with this project.

In some respects, not so "ingenious" and "high level", but looking through the code, and class structure again, after having given the grade (8/12) I now wonder if it actually is of a high enough level for a better mark in Development, but to know this, I would have to know what other students around the world achieve. But, anyway, as an internal assessment, yes, I am well pleased with the code that she developed.

(All Students:

- Netbeans auto-generated code usually pasted below other code for GUI classes.
- Interviews not counted in Word Count
- Table contents (re-)counted (by me) if close to sentences)