

Interview questions and notes of responses are as follows below:

Tell me a bit about some of the tasks you have to do?

- Do you have very different timelines for different things?
- Are some things more urgent than others?
 - Yes because he invests in businesses that require weekly/daily supervision, and others where he's a 'sleeping investor': only has monthly meetings to recap.
- Is it sometimes difficult to prioritize/schedule your work day?
 - Major challenge is the time zones, based in asia and most partners are in asia/europe/north america.
 - What would help is a one stop shop solution where all tasks are laid out, prioritized by importance and where he can check tasks and visually tick a box.
 - Calculate what % he's done of his daily tasks.
 - Color codes for accomplished/urgency/geographic locations.
- Do you sometimes forget things you have to do, perhaps because you don't have a visual representation of what you need to do for that day?
 - No, problem is making sure he didn't forget anything, double checking because he doesn't have a tool that tells him what's been done.
 - Wastes some time.
- What are the challenges of doing different tasks for different groups?
- Do you feel like you'd be more organized with a ranked, visual schedule of things you need to do?
 - Yes, will save him a lot of time.
- Who are some of the people/groups you need to complete tasks for?
 - Consulting: 2 clients
 - 1 financial institution based in Finland
 - 1 corporate/company based in Dubai.
 - Current Investment:
 - 1 telecom based in Europe
 - 1 agriculture business based in Morocco.
